Employment and Economic Response to COVID-19

Weekly Summary: Sunday, March 22

This digest is a compilation of information and resources related to employment, commerce and economic development issues surrounding COVID-19. There are numerous online resources for those seeking health-related information, including daily COVID-19 updates from the Oregon Health Authority at <https://govstatus.egov.com/OR-OHA-COVID-19>.

Business Resources

State guidance for small businesses While restaurants, bars and other establishments that offer food or beverages for sale are restricted to carry-out or delivery, the state has guidance for other types of small businesses. The state urges these businesses to assess their practices, implement strong social distancing measures, and close their doors temporarily if they cannot put the new guidance in place. The state also urges businesses to keep the health and safety of Oregonians at the forefront as they make hard business decisions. Updated and current information from the state on coronavirus can be found here.

Business Oregon has an extensive list of resources for businesses related to COVID-19, including information on financing, childcare, free and discounted business coaching and more.

Business Oregon has developed Business Survival Tips During a Pandemic, viewable here.

The state has set up a Rapid Response task force designed to promote economic recovery and help businesses respond to layoffs and the dislocation of workers. The team will work directly with businesses and their employees to assist in layoff aversion strategies, help affected workers apply for unemployment benefits and find access to health care resources and training so they can get back to work rapidly.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has created a Coronavirus Small Business Guide, with a range of resources for employers.

Worker and Unemployment Resources

Many people are contacting the Oregon Employment Department and asking if WorkSource Centers are open to walk-in customers during this time of closures and social distancing. While the situation could change day-to-day, the centers remain open as of Thursday, March 19. Staff and customers are asked to take some simple health precautions, which includes limiting the number of customers at any given time and Oregon is seeing a very large number of new unemployment insurance claims, with long wait times both in person and over the phone. While WorkSource offices remain open across the state, people should strongly consider applying online for benefits through the Oregon Employment Department.

Cities and Counties

Oregon was recently designated as eligible for Small Business Administration (SBA) Economic Injury Disaster Loan assistance. This is an important declaration because it makes SBA loans available statewide to small businesses and private, nonprofit organizations to help alleviate economic injury caused by COVID-19. Loans may be used to pay fixed debts, payroll, accounts payable and other bills that can't be paid because of the disaster's impact. The interest rate is 3.75 percent for small businesses and 2.75 percent for non-profits. SBA offers loans with long-term repayments in order to keep payments affordable, and applicants can apply online at <https://disasterloan.sba.gov/ela>. Applicants can also call SBA's Customer Service Center at (800) 659-2955 or email disastercustomerservice@sba.gov for more information.

More on land use decisions subject to the 120 and 150 day rules in ORS 227.178 and ORS 215.427: The statutory time limits for local land use authorities to decide applications is causing some anxiety at the local level. The state is exploring options to temporarily suspend the 120 and 150-day time clocks, though how and whether this will happen is uncertain. Meanwhile, the Department of Land Conservation and Development asks local land use authorities to contact all current development review applicants and request that they provide a written waiver of the 120 or 150-day requirement. Jurisdictions that are compelled to hold a public hearing on a land use application should consider hearings via teleconference. For more information on this issue contact DLCDD's Community Services Division Manager Gordon Howard at gordon.howard@state.or.us.
